

Please sequence in the correct order: The story of a coffee bean

The beans were tipped into a large drying rack and lay in the sunshine. They turned green in colour.

The coffee was sold to shop and cafe owners for them to sell to their customers.

One day a girl called Anya came along and picked the coffee bean. She put it in a basket with hundreds of other coffee beans.

The beans travelled to the United Kingdom on a ship, then in a lorry.

Once upon a time a coffee bean began to grow in a hot country called Kenya.

The coffee was drunk by grown-ups.

A man came along and bought some beans. He put them into a hot machine where they turned brown. They had been roasted. Some beans were sent to a grinding machine.
